WVNEC
Noon Webinar Series

Series Description: In anticipation of a clinical ethics consultant certification process, WVNEC will continue to focus this webinar series on helping to prepare its interested members for certification. The American Society of Bioethics and Humanities (ASBH), the largest bioethics society in the US, has developed a quality attestation process through which ASBH will "attest to" and confirm the quality of clinical ethics consultants based upon consultant experience, education, and demonstration of clinical ethics consultation skills. This webinar series will prepare ethics consultants to apply the process of ethical decision-making and West Virginia health care law, and utilize ethics consultant core competencies to identify, analyze, and resolve ethical conflicts in increasingly frequent cases confronting ethics committees.

Series Learning Objectives:

At the conclusion of each conference, participants should be able to:
- apply the process of ethical decision-making to ethics consultation;
- incorporate knowledge of WV healthcare law into ethics consultation; and
- demonstrate mastery in the core competencies required for ethics consultation.

Target Audience: These conferences are appropriate for physicians, nurses, social workers, administrators, clergy, and ethics committee members who serve on institutional ethics committees and wish to expand their knowledge and skills in health care ethics consultation.
